The WARSAW-GOCLAWSKA (R 53/L 08) airfield is located between WARSAW-PRAGA (R 53/L 09) and LAS (R 53/L 08), north of the WARSAW-PRAGA - LAS road. Two or three gliders and two bi-planes, serving as towing planes, were parked at the field in September 1948. The grass-covered landing field had no concrete runways. Three hangars were located on the southern field border; one of them, was old and owned by the former Aero Club, the second, a steel structure, had been built in 1947/1948, and of the third hangar the rough brickwork was completed by September 1948.

Comment: According to report of November 1946, the WARSAW-GOCLAWSKA airfield was being repaired and expanded after the war. So far, the field had apparently been used only by the Polish transportation unit. No indications of an intended military occupation were observed. The stated location of the field corresponds to the town map of "WARSAW" that is available.
